The Heart and Soul of Change: What Works in Therapy by Mark A. Hubble, Barry L. Duncan, & Scott D. Miller (Eds.). the impact of model/technique factors is related to approximately 15% of improvement in therapy. Most clinicians believe that these factors are linked to specific favorite interventions (e.g., the miracle question in solution-focused therapy, systematic desensitization in behavior therapy). However, the authors consider these factors more broadly as common qualities (regardless of theoretical orientation) that prepare clients to take action in order to do something differently (e.g., to develop new understandings, to feel different emotions, to alter old patterns of behavior).
