Educational leaders play a pivotal role in affecting the climate, attitude and reputation of their schools. But what makes a truly effective leader? Here we offer insight on 10 educational leadership qualities that make for a truly effective school leader. Educational leaders play a pivotal role in affecting the climate, attitude and reputation of their schools. They are the cornerstone on which learning communities function and grow. With successful school leadership, schools become effective incubators of learning, places where students are not only educated but challenged, nurtured and encouraged. On the other hand, poor or absent school leadership can undermine the goals of an educational system.

Successful management requires a clear link between aims, strategy and operational management. The process of deciding on the aims of the organisation is at the heart of educational management.
Collaborative leaders nurture new leadership within the collaboration and the community. Rather than trying to protect their leadership positions, good collaborative leaders encourage potential leaders. They provide opportunities for them to hone their leadership skills, and afford mentoring and support. The context of leadership - all the elements that affect what a leader may have to face and what will be required of him - is unique to each situation. As a collaborative leader, you need to understand your particular situation fully, so that you're not caught by surprise by a development that you could have anticipated. (2012). Educational Implications

Autocratic leadership, also known as authoritarian leadership, is a leadership style characterized by individual control over all decisions and little input from group members. Autocratic leaders typically make choices based on their own ideas and judgments and rarely accept advice from followers. Lastly, it is not possible to assign others in distributed leadership since there are tasks for all and everyone has equal authority and rights to undertake them. Badaracco (2001) referred to this dimension of leadership as 'concertive action' (as contrasted with 'numerical action') and illustrated his argument with three alternative forms of engagement ('spontaneous collaboration', 'intuitive working'.
